Program Description Our Second Chance Home program targets teen mothers ages 13-19 who are living in an environment that is deemed susceptible to abuse, neglect and violence. The program offers residents a safe, structured environment where they may, through achievement of individual goals, reduce current and future risk factors which may result in cyclical dependence and reduced quality of life for the teen parents and their children. At the same time we ensure a foundation of necessary education, life skills and self-worth. We believe that with a firm foundation and the proper tools teen parents may

The program offers residents a safe, structured environment where they may, through achievement of individual goals, reduce current and future risk factors which may result in cyclical dependence and reduced quality of life for the teen parents and their children. At the same time we ensure a foundation of necessary education, life skills and self-worth. We believe that with a firm foundation and the proper tools teen parents may

Youth live on the Decatur campus in one of five buildings that provide efficiency apartments for each participant. The program of Independent Living acknowledges that as youth in foster care mature chronologically, they come of an age when they can legally exit the system. Our philosophy is to both empower and emotionally support older adolescents in a manner that provides a bridge between foster care and becoming independent. In the agency continuum, the program of Independent Living is the middle

Program Description FaithBridge Foster Care works within and partners with local churches to create independent foster care ministries around a small group model, called the Community of CareSM, which provides foster families with support and resources. This relationship-enhanced model creates increased foster family capacity with built-in stability and quality, bringing children and families together in a safe, loving Christian community. FaithBridge Foster Care's strategy helps to bring together an entire community of caring individuals--professionals, pastors and volunteers--who surround children and families in loving, nurturing relationships and who help bridge the emotional traumas often caused by neglect.
